Flamingo Products of South Florida has been Certified as a Green Partner

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

August 5, 2009, Hialeah, FL- Flamingo Products of South Florida a leading supplier of premium disposable tableware solutions, announced today that it has been certified as a Certified Green Partner. Certified Green Partners is an organization dedicated to protecting the world's forests and natural resources, with the goal of reducing the impact of products and services that destroy the planet's delicate climate balance.

Certified Green Partners is a non-profit organization that helps schools, businesses and other organizations become "Green". To become a "Partner" the companies must prove to a third party auditor that they use certified paper in their office and printed products, that they recycle their paper waste, and that they use vegetable-based inks in their printed products.

Flamingo Products of South Florida proudly embraces environmental responsibility in all aspects of its business. Our selection of Green napkins are manufactured with 100% recycled paper and printed with soy-based ink to help maintain a healthy balance in our delicate natural environment.

Why Soy-Based Ink?

Soy-based ink, first introduced in 1987, is made from soybean oil. Unlike traditional petroleum-based inks which can create toxic fumes, this type of ink produces no air pollution when drying. Soy ink also supports the process of paper recycling, since it is much easier to remove from paper pulp fibers during de-inking.
